Cook, the Scamp, Owes his Disgrace to the Wiles of an Adventuress. St. Louis Times: The police authorities are very glad to know that Henry, alias Cook, is under arrest again at Little Rock.

His adventures began in this city while he was in the employ of Dozier, Weyl & Co., the cracker bakers on Sixth and Pine streets. Many of my personal friends are supporting Mr. Flippin, with whom not an unkind feeling occurs, as that is their right and privilege.
P. D. BEECHER. EDITORS APPEAL-It is a matter of sin cere congratulation among the many friends of Mr. M. B. Trezeyant in the seventh ward that he has received the nomination of both the Flippin and Anderson meetings for the position of school-visitor. He was really the hoice of the Johnson meeting held previously, his name having been reported by the nominating committee. Mr. Tregevant has been a member of the board of education for several years, and enjoys a most enviable reputation for zeal and efficiency in the dispossible I would be willing to have the pains rily removed beyond all party controversies your son is under transferred to myself, if it and we would like to see the citizens of the would relieve him. I beg of you and your wife to please to take this into consideration, an apology to and comprehensive, and his experience abso lutely invaluable to the system. Let us elect him by a unanimous vote;

take this into consideration, an apology to yourself and family, and hope that my apologies may be accepted. I did not call your son any hard names, or if I did I did not Carey Wants to Carry Three Crews. EDITORS APPEAL-As this is a time in our political history when every man should "show his hand," I have a few questions to propound. We find in the eighth ward a eman who is seeking the nomination of the Democrats for school visitor, and yet there are grave doubts with me as to his position in the present canvass. About three weeks since, Mr. Joe P. Carey became a member of the eighth ward workingmen's club, and submitted his name to their convention as a candidate for school visitor from that ward. The workingmen failed to recognize the su perior abilities of Mr. Carey, and nominate another member of their party. The next thing we hear of Mr. Carey he is proposed and nominated by the Flippin-Eaton-Garrett-Smith-Shaw party. Again we hear of this gentleman offering himself for nomination before the regular Democratic convention of the eighth ward. Now, the question presents itself to me, Is Mr. Carey a Johnson man, an Anderson man, or a Flippin man? For myself, I am a straight-out Johnson Democrat, have always voted the Democratic ticket, and expect to do so at the coming election; but I want to vote for a man whose Democracy cannot be questioned. We have a large number of good and true Democrats in the eighth ward, as capable of fulfilling the duties of school visitor as Mr. Carey, and men, too, who do not seek the nomination of the workingmen or the Flippin Shaw crowd Then why nominate a doubtful man? Giv us a true Democrat, and we will elect him without trouble; but this is no time to take up a gentleman who tries to ride three horses JOHNSON DEMOCRAT. The Sodality Amateur Association, EDITORS APPEAL-The members of the above society gave one of their delightful en-tertainments at the hall, on Washington street, on Monday evening last, and, as novices, excel all the others who have attempte in this line to amuse the public. The hall is neat and tastefully descrated, the only draw-back being its size, as it was more than com-fortably filled on this occasion. Miss Blessing, as the "Countess," was well up in th part; her elocution is fine, and in the scene, where she sues for pardon to "Eu tache," she was particularly interesting. I only remains for her to improve in gesticulation, and acquire more grace, to make an ex-cellent actress. The dress she wore as the bride was decidedly elegant. Miss Barry, as "Madame De Lambert." acquitted herself well as the naughty woman, and, as usual in lows library to-morrow (Monday) morning at eleven o'clock. Important business will be discussed, and the ladies of Memphis are her role, the implacable mether-in-law. felt for her in some of the acts, as I may b so situated some of these days. Miss Young, the third lady, as her name implies, ambled through her part with the vivacity of a young "dear," and more than pleased the audience by her manner and sweet smiles. Now for the gentlemen: Mr.

J. Sullivan, the inimitable, represented
"Jabot," a stupid servant, but failed to show any deficiency of intellect, if I am any judge, as by his eccentricities he kept the audience amused as long as he remained upon the stage. An ounce of fun is worth a ton o sorrow, said a philosopher. It was impossible to resist the comical phases of the scenes when he loomed upon the horizon. Mr. Carey, as the money-lender, with all the self-ishness belonging to his vocation, so identified himself with the character that did I not know the generous soul he possesses I would have imagined him a veritable "Shylock." Mr. J. Duffy, "not Duffer," played his part too well to suit me, as the villain; he several times looked so fiercely, as I thought, at me, I was much inclined to get under the chair I sat on, but I guess he didn't mean anything. I was only nervous.

mean anything, I was only nervous. Before conclusion I will say of Mr. J. Smith, he has, without doubt, talent for the profession, with its many requisites. Without wishing to particularize longer, each and every one did well. Last, but not least, Mrs. J. Sullivan gave, by request, one of her soul-inspiring songs, as she only can sing it, "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls," and for the time, while listening to her, I thought I was an inmate of one of the palaces of "Alhambra.

At the matinee yesterday the Memphi named George Woodruff for several hundred dollars in cash, packed up the greater portion of the tea and shipped it to Kansas City, and jumped the town for Kansas City. The tea fell into the hands of the authorities in the latter place and subsequently reached his St. Louis creditors. Kansas City had no reason to be proud of her acquaintance with Henry, for during his bri i stay there he managed to swindle her citizens out of several hundred dollars.
